6 What constitutes the Food Inspection Scheme

The regulations in this Part, together with Division 2 of Part 2 of the Act, constitute the Scheme.

7 What orders may the Minister make in relation to the Scheme?

Subject to section 17 of the Act, the Minister may:
(a) make orders, not inconsistent with the Act or any regulations under the Act:
   (i) identifying food of a particular kind as food of a kind that is required to be inspected, or inspected and analysed, under the Scheme; or
   (ii) identifying risk food of a particular kind as food that must be covered by a recognised foreign government certificate; and
(b) from time to time vary orders made under this regulation.

8 Classification of food by Minister

The Minister may make orders classifying food of a particular kind to which the Act applies as:
(a) risk food; or
(b) compliance agreement food; or
(c) surveillance food.

9 Food that may be classified as risk food

Food of a particular kind may be classified as risk food if, on being consulted as required under section 17 of the Act, Food Standards Australia New Zealand advises the Minister that the food has the potential to pose a high or medium risk to public health.

10 What is meant by compliance agreement food?

(1) Food to which a compliance agreement applies is a kind of food that may be classified as compliance agreement food.

(2) The food is classified only to the extent to which the compliance agreement applies.

11 What is meant by surveillance food?

Food must be classified as surveillance food if it is not:
(a) classified as risk food; or
(b) classified as compliance agreement food; or
Regulation 12

(c) the subject of a holding order.

12 How can food receive a different classification?

The Minister may make orders reclassifying food.

13 What food is subject to inspection?

All food to which the Act applies may be inspected under the Scheme.

14 At what rate must food be referred for inspection?

(1) All food classified as risk food must be referred by an officer of Customs (within the meaning of the Customs Act 1901) for inspection under the Scheme.

(2) Five per cent of consignments of food classified as surveillance food must be referred by an officer of Customs (within the meaning of the Customs Act 1901) for inspection under the Scheme.

15 What is the rate of inspection for risk food?

All food classified as risk food is subject to 1 of the following rates of inspection:

(a) tightened—under which each consignment from a particular source is inspected;

(b) normal—under which 25% of consignments from a particular source are selected randomly for inspection;

(c) reduced—under which 5% of consignments from a particular source are selected randomly for inspection.

16 At what rate is risk food first inspected?

(1) Food that is classified as risk food must be inspected at the tightened rate if:

(a) it has the potential to pose a high risk to human health; and

(b) its rate of inspection has not been lowered under regulation 17.

(2) Food that is classified as risk food must be inspected at the normal rate if:

(a) it has the potential to pose a medium risk to human health; and

(b) its rate of inspection has not been raised or lowered under regulation 17.

17 When may the rate of inspection for risk food be altered?

(1) The rate of inspection of food that is:

(a) of a particular kind; and

(b) classified as risk food; and

(c) imported from a particular source;

may be raised or lowered in accordance with this regulation.
(2) The rate of inspection of food may be lowered from the tightened rate to the normal rate when 5 consecutive batches of that food pass inspection.

(3) The rate of inspection of food may be lowered from the normal rate to the reduced rate when:
   (a) 20 consecutive batches of that food under normal inspection are considered acceptable on original inspection; and
   (b) there are reasonable grounds for believing that food of that kind from that source does not pose a risk to human health.

(3A) The rate of inspection of food may be lowered from the normal rate or the tightened rate to the reduced rate when:
   (a) there are reasonable grounds for believing that food of that kind from that source:
      (i) complies with the applicable standards; and
      (ii) does not pose a risk to human health; and
   (b) if the previous rate was the normal rate because it had been raised under subregulation (5), or the tightened rate because it had been raised under subregulation (4) or (6)—5 consecutive batches of that food pass inspection.

Note: See regulation 17A for a circumstance in which there are reasonable grounds for the belief mentioned in paragraph (a).

(4) The rate of inspection of food may be raised from the normal rate to the tightened rate when:
   (a) 1 lot of the food from which samples are taken is rejected on original inspection; or
   (b) there are reasonable grounds for believing that food of that kind from that source does not comply with an applicable standard.

(5) The rate of inspection of food may be raised from the reduced rate to the normal rate when:
   (a) 1 lot of the food is rejected on original inspection; or
   (b) there are reasonable grounds for believing that food of that kind from that source does not comply with an applicable standard.

(6) The rate of inspection of food may be raised from the reduced rate to the tightened rate when:
   (a) 1 or more lots is rejected on original inspection; or
   (b) there are reasonable grounds for believing that food of that kind from that source:
      (i) does not comply with an applicable standard; or
      (ii) poses a serious risk to human health.
17A Systems recognition arrangements

Without limiting paragraph 17(3A)(a), there are taken to be reasonable grounds for the belief mentioned in that paragraph if that kind of food, from that source, is covered by a written arrangement that is:

(a) in force between the Department and an instrumentality of a government of a foreign country; and
(b) based on an assessment of the food safety systems of Australia and the foreign country that concluded:
   (i) that Australia and the foreign country have equivalent food safety systems; and
   (ii) that the Department and the instrumentality conduct equivalent monitoring of the food they regulate.

18 When is food taken to be failing food?

(1) A particular lot of food from a batch is taken to be failing food if:
   (a) 1 sample in the batch fails inspection; and
   (b) the particular lot concerned has not passed inspection.

(2) Particular food is taken to be failing food if:
   (a) the food is a kind of risk food that is identified in an order made under regulation 7 as risk food of a kind that must be covered by a recognised foreign government certificate; and
   (b) the food is not covered by such a certificate.

19 When, and at what rate, may food related to failing food be inspected?

(1) The owner of a particular lot of food that:
   (a) has not been inspected; and
   (b) is taken to be failing food;
may apply for a further Food Control Certificate for that lot.

(2) If a particular lot of food:
   (a) is taken to be failing food;
   (b) has not been inspected; and
   (c) is presented again by its importer for inspection within a reasonable period after it was taken to be failing food;
the food may be sampled, inspected or analysed at a more intensive rate than that prescribed for food classified as risk food.

20 When, and at what rate, failing food may be presented again for inspection

(1) A lot of failing food that has been inspected must not be inspected again unless it is treated in accordance with a permission to treat failing food given under paragraph 20(2)(a) of the Act.

(2) Food that:

Regulation 21

(a) fails inspection under the Scheme; and
(b) is treated in accordance with a permission to treat failing food given under paragraph 20(2)(a) of the Act;
may be sampled, inspected or analysed at a more intensive rate than that prescribed for food classified as risk food.

21 What surveillance food is to be inspected?

(1) All food classified as surveillance food that is referred for inspection under the Scheme must be inspected.

(2) If food coming to the attention of an authorised officer acting in the course of his or her duties:
   (a) is examinable food to which subparagraph (d)(i) of the definition of examinable food applies; and
   (b) is not referred for inspection under the Scheme;
the authorised officer may refer that food for inspection as if it were classified as risk food that potentially poses a high risk to human health.

(3) Food referred for inspection under subregulation (2) must be the subject of notice to an owner setting out the reasons why the food must be inspected.

22 What sampling procedures are followed in inspection of food?

(1) Food that is referred for inspection under the Scheme may be inspected by inspecting randomly selected samples of the food.

(2) The rate at which samples must be taken for inspection from food of each classification referred to in regulation 8 is as set out in Schedule 1.

(3) Subregulation (1) does not apply to compliance agreement food.

23 How is food that is subject of a holding order treated?

Food that is the subject of a holding order is taken, for the purposes of the Scheme, to be food classified as risk food until the holding order is revoked.

24 What is an imported food inspection advice?

An imported food inspection advice may be in accordance with an approved form and must:
(a) be in writing addressed to the person importing the food or his or her agent; and
(b) contain the following information:
   (i) the name of the person who inspected the food; and
   (ii) details (if any) identifying the laboratory where the food was analysed; and
Regulation 25

(iii) a description of the failing food, including its country of origin, its lot or code number (if any), its brand and the number and kind of packages in the lot; and
(iv) a statement indicating the required means of disposal of the food; and
(v) the reasons for the failure of the food to pass inspection; and
(c) contain a declaration to be completed by the importer, or his or her agent:

   Imported Foods’.

(2) The markings must be clearly visible.

(3) A person must not interfere with the markings on a batch of food held for inspection.

   Penalty: 10 penalty units.

(4) For the purposes of subregulation (1), the erection of signs or tape, bearing the words:

   and delineating the area in which batches of food that are to be inspected are held, constitutes marking those batches of food.

26 How is food subject to inspection to be held?

Subject to regulation 27, when a sample of a consignment of food classified as risk food, or food that is the subject of a holding order, is selected for inspection, the rest of the consignment must be held:

(a) at the place nominated in the application for a food control certificate under subparagraph 5(3)(c)(viii) in relation to the food; or
(b) if, upon application by the person who applied for the food control certificate, an authorised officer approves the food being held at another place—that other place; until the results of the inspection are known.

27 Are there any exceptions to the rules relating to the holding of risk food?

(1) Food:
Regulation 28

(a) that is part of a consignment of food classified as risk food, being a consignment that is selected for inspection; and
(b) that is not itself part of a sample selected to be inspected; and
(c) that would otherwise be required to be held under regulation 26 until after the results of inspection or analysis of samples from the consignment; and
(d) that is so perishable that it cannot be held in its imported condition until the results of the inspection are finalised without perishing or becoming unusable; may be released by an authorised officer before the results of the inspection are determined subject to conditions intended to minimise or overcome the risk to human health posed by the food.

(2) Without limiting the generality of subregulation (1), conditions under that subregulation may include a condition that a number of shipments must be held for inspection before any is released.

28 Who is to analyse food under the Scheme?

Analysis of food under the Scheme must be performed by a person appointed as an analyst under subsection 34(1) of the Act.

29 How is food to be analysed under the Scheme?

Food required to be analysed under the Scheme may be subjected to microbiological, chemical or physical analysis, or any other kind of analysis, necessary to determine whether:

(a) it poses a risk to human health; or
(b) it complies with the Food Standards Code.

30 What are the powers of authorised officers?

An authorised officer may:

(a) require a person involved in the importation of particular food to provide enough of the food for inspection to enable a true random sample to be obtained for inspection; and
(b) require a person involved in the importation of particular food to provide details of lot or batch codes and quantities of the food to enable a random sample to be obtained for inspection; and
(c) take sufficient food to give a representative sample from the food being imported, whether that amount exceeds the amount actually required to be referred for inspection or not; and
(d) take samples free of any charge; and
(e) take samples free of any liability for damage necessarily caused in the taking of the sample; and
(f) ask an analyst to analyse samples of food taken for inspection, whether or not requesting that specific tests, or tests for specific contaminants or matter, be carried out on the food.
Regulation 31

31 Effect of recognised foreign government certificate or recognised quality assurance certificate on rate of inspection of food

The rate of inspection of food may be varied if:
(a) the owner of the food produces to an authorised officer a recognised foreign government certificate or a recognised quality assurance certificate in relation to the food; and
(b) there is no reason to doubt the authenticity of the certificate.

32 Verification of reliability of recognised foreign government certificates and recognised quality assurance certificates

The reliability of a recognised foreign government certificate, or a recognised quality assurance certificate may be verified by:
(a) drawing consignments for sampling at a rate that is not less than 5% of the total consignments certified by:
   (i) in relation to a recognised foreign government certificate—an instrumentality of the foreign government under subsection 18(1) of the Act; or
   (ii) in relation to a recognised quality assurance certificate—exported by an overseas processing operation approved under subsection 19(1) of the Act; and

Schedule 1—Selection of samples

(regulation 22)

1. If details of lots are provided for a consignment or batch, the number of lots to be selected for sampling is:
   (a) if the food is classified as surveillance food—in accordance with Table 1; and
   (b) if the food is classified as risk food and the rate of inspection of the food is tightened or normal—in accordance with Table 1; and
   (c) if the food is classified as risk food and the rate of inspection of the food is reduced—in accordance with Table 2.

Endnote 1—About the endnotes

The endnotes provide information about this compilation and the compiled law.

The following endnotes are included in every compilation:

Endnote 1—About the endnotes
Endnote 2—Abbreviation key
Endnote 3—Legislation history
Endnote 4—Amendment history

Abbreviation key—Endnote 2
The abbreviation key sets out abbreviations that may be used in the endnotes.

Legislation history and amendment history—Endnotes 3 and 4
Amending laws are annotated in the legislation history and amendment history.

The legislation history in endnote 3 provides information about each law that has amended (or will amend) the compiled law. The information includes commencement details for amending laws and details of any application, saving or transitional provisions that are not included in this compilation.

The amendment history in endnote 4 provides information about amendments at the provision (generally section or equivalent) level. It also includes information about any provision of the compiled law that has been repealed in accordance with a provision of the law.

Editorial changes
The Legislation Act 2003 authorises First Parliamentary Counsel to make editorial and presentational changes to a compiled law in preparing a compilation of the law for registration. The changes must not change the effect of the law. Editorial changes take effect from the compilation registration date.

If the compilation includes editorial changes, the endnotes include a brief outline of the changes in general terms. Full details of any changes can be obtained from the Office of Parliamentary Counsel.

Misdescribed amendments
A misdescribed amendment is an amendment that does not accurately describe the amendment to be made. If, despite the misdescription, the amendment can be given effect as intended, the amendment is incorporated into the compiled law and the abbreviation “(md)” added to the details of the amendment included in the amendment history.

If a misdescribed amendment cannot be given effect as intended, the abbreviation “(md not incorp)” is added to the details of the amendment included in the amendment history.
